

Trauma Informed Practice and Alcohol and Other Drug Use

This one day training event is designed for health professionals and staff in a support, advocacy or counselling role, who are working with people who have experienced trauma and are using alcohol and other drugs. The facilitator will lead an engaging, interactive group training session with a key focus on strategies you can use with your clients.

Facilitator: Fiona Reid, Womens Health & Family Services

Fiona is a Masters qualified Family Therapist (M.So.Sc) and has worked in the area of addictions, co-morbidity and trauma with families for over 15 years. She has extensive experience with a diverse range of communities and sectors across Western Australia. Fiona has worked as a sessional lecturer at Edith Cowan University and is an accredited clinical supervisor (counselling) with significant experience as an educator and trainer. She has presented at international, national and local conferences on a range of health and well-being topics and continues to work with a small number of individuals and families (co-counselling) with a particular focus on addictions and intergenerational trauma.

The package includes a copy of the manual "Trauma-Informed Treatment Guide for Working with Women with Alcohol and Other Drug Issues" (3rd ed, 2017) by A.Marsh, T.Towers & S.O'Toole (valued at $66).
